

What Would You Say?

A. Imagine a friend is making fun of you for not having sex. Come up with ways to explain your reasons for waiting to have sex.

You still haven't had sex? Haven't you two been dating for a while?

I'm not ready. There is a chance that I can get pregnant.

I'm scared. I'm not comfortable with showing my body to some guy.

Why are you scared? Just use protection.

B. What would you say if your partner was pressuring you to have sex? Imagine that the person speaking is someone that you care about and like.

I'm just trying to show you I love you. Don't you love me?

You're so sexy. How can you expect me to get turned on, and then not have sex?

"Of course I love you. There are so many other ways to show love."

Deal with it

I can't wait around forever. I thought you were more mature. If you don't want to have sex then what else can we do?

"If you can't wait then I'm leaving you."

C. What would you say if your partner didn't want to use protection? Imagine you are considering having sex with the person who is speaking.

You don't need to worry about STIs. I haven't been with anyone else.

What about pregnancy? I don't want to get pregnant.

It's just in case to be safe.

Why do you want me to get tested? Do you think I'm dirty or something?

We'll just be careful, I promise nothing will happen.

You don't know that. There is a huge chance something will happen. We are going to use protection whether you like it or not.

D. You are at a party and your friend wants to have sex with someone who has been drinking alcohol. What would you say to convince your friend that it's a bad idea? Your friend says...

Don't worry. They don't look drunk.

You can't tell by just looking at them.

What Would You Say?

A. Imagine a friend is making fun of you for not having sex. Come up with ways to explain your reasons for waiting to have sex.

You still haven't had sex? Haven't you two been dating for a while?

I'm waiting to have sex when I'm married.

I believe in sex in marriage

Why are you scared? Just use protection.

B. What would you say if your partner was pressuring you to have sex? Imagine that the person speaking is someone that you care about and like.

I'm just trying to show you I love you. Don't you love me?

You're so sexy. How can you expect me to get turned on, and then not have sex?

" Yes, but I am waiting to marry before having sex. "

" ~~My bad.~~ "

I can't wait around forever. I thought you were more mature. If you don't want to have sex then what else can we do?

" _____ "

" _____ "

C. What would you say if your partner didn't want to use protection? Imagine you are considering having sex with the person who is speaking.

You don't need to worry about STIs. I haven't been with anyone else.

Better safe than sorry.

No, but STI's don't show symptoms sometimes.

Why do you want me to get tested? Do you think I'm dirty or something?

We'll just be careful, I promise nothing will happen.

There's no point in risking it.

D. You are at a party and your friend wants to have sex with someone who has been drinking alcohol. What would you say to convince your friend that it's a bad idea? Your friend says...

Don't worry. They don't look drunk.

If they aren't sober, they aren't consenting and that's rape.